   a. Connor Lewis, at-large seconds

2. Discussion:
   a. Taylor Tutin, MSA: Faculty council would be working on faculty training and they said might be doing one for the students too.
   b. Brittani Fults, ABGPS: Is the resolution proposing an idea or supporting the already existing idea
      i. Ms. Jones: It’s not specifically supporting the idea but a broad support to diversity training.
   c. Connor Lewis, at-large – There seems to be an implicit support for Angela Speck’s proposal which puts Graduate TA’s in the front line for the training which is not good for graduate students, and without even having a final document on the proposal it might not be good to support the proposal.
      i. Ms. Jones: I have a few edits to the resolution that should address the issue and I’m open to amendments about this.
   d. Stephen Herman, at-large: Second resolved clause states that in-person training is suggested. Do you have any empirical evidence that in-person training is effective vs online training?
General Assembly Meeting
Tuesday, December 1, 2015

i. Abott Henderson, Classical Studies: There is a lot of evidence that people learn better through in-person training compared to online training.

e. Glenn Baker, Psychological Sciences: Can we specify who will we encourage the administration to put in charge of the training?

   i. Mr. Howe: I think we better specify who not and how not to put in charge.

   ii. Connor Lewis, at-large: Previous iterations of this training have put a lot of burden on NTT Faculty, we should keep this in mind when we craft language for who not to put in charge of this training.

f. Claire Spradling, Medical School: I think we should not demand for in person training but only recommend it because we are not aware of who would be taking care of the training.

   i. Ms. Jones: According to the proposal, it says the training is planned in person, so we are just supporting it.

   ii. Mr. McCune: Statement says only suggest and not demand.

g. Mr. Howe: Amendment to second whereas clause talking about the graduate students who sit on non job search committees.

   i. Ms. Jones: I’m open to the amendment.

h. Connor Lewis, at-large: Can we add some language specifying the money for these training should not be an added burden on the departments but should be coming from the administration.

i. Ms. Jones: Definitely open to amendments on that.

i. Sheena Rice, at-large: Mizzou is going to be at the forefront for these trainings. Grad students should be a part of it.

i. Ms. Steen: Joint session resolution from GPC in support of exploration of an Institute for Social Change.

ii. Connor Lewis: Comment in support of graduate students participating in such training.

j. Glenn Baker, Psychological Sciences: Could you specify more about the undergraduate course we are talking about?
